Hence, if you "mess up" (or miss) either exam, the comprehensive final is weighted more heavily than the two midterms, or make-up midterm exams, since the final is weighted more heavily for missing one exam in any event. Show up to the final (TA) to get a copy of it and take it under supervision. You can check the web (you will know in this way how you did on the final) and your answers to midterm exams promptly after the final. You can immediately know how well you did on the final (circle circled answers on the test booklet!).

The University of Colorado does not allow students to drop a course (unfortunately) little incentive to drop a course of difficulty--since I believe in creating an atmosphere of challenge the two midterms out of the final!
